Online Training on Wraparound Principles and Practice Now Available

The Division of Care and Treatment Services (DCTS) promotes wraparound as best practice for supporting children with severe emotional disturbances and their families. Wraparound provides a holistic, youth- and family-driven way of responding when children experience serious mental health or behavioral challenges. DCTS and partner agencies provide training throughout Wisconsin on the principles and practice of wraparound to ensure a common understanding of how wraparound works.

DCTS, in collaboration with White Pine Consulting Service, has developed a series of videos on the principles and practice of wraparound. The training videos are available for free on a new website, The Foundations of Wisconsin Wraparound. These videos are intended for anyone interested in learning about the wraparound process including: children and families; care providers; and individuals and professionals involved with Coordinated Services Teams Initiatives and Comprehensive Community Services.
